Mayan Language Institute

Kaqchikel or K'iche' Maya • Intensive Language and Culture

Summer Term • Guatemala Beginning/Intermediate/Advanced

Developed in collaboration between U.S.-trained faculty and native-speaking instructors, the program offers an immersive experience to graduate and undergraduate students interested in Mayan languages and cultures. Its highly individualized classes combine language immersion activities, lectures, one-on-one conversations, guest speakers, and cultural excursions. The intensive nature of these classes, along with students' daily interactions with members of Maya communities, enables them to enhance their language skills rapidly while gaining firsthand experience of the lived realities of contemporary Indigenous Peoples.

Courses

Students enroll in two (2) 6000-level (mixed graduate/undergraduate) Anthropology courses, for a total of 6 Tulane credits, transferable to other U.S. institutions.

Cost

Program fees include Tulane tuition and required fees, costs associated with required co-curricular activities, housing with local families, and most meals. Fees do not include airfare to/from Guatemala.

Financial Aid

Limited number of in-house grants for Tulane students. To find out more visit stonecenter.tulane.edu/resources/students. A FLAS-eligible version of the program is available.

Applications

Applications will open for submission in November at studyabroadprograms.tulane.edu. For current deadlines and more info visit stonecenter.tulane.edu/summer-programs.
